Social Story

Hello

Welcome to Cast

This is the entrance to the theatre.

The sliding doors will open as you come inside. These will not hurt you.

When you arrive you will see the Box Office in front of you. This is where you can buy or collect your tickets and ask for help.

This is the foyer area. Here you might see lots of people waiting for the show to start.

At the Box Office you may have to wait in a line to get your ticket.

Many people will be watching the same show, so there could be a queue.

Your ticket will look similar to this:

On the ticket you will see the name of the show.

The date and time the show starts.

The seat row and number that you will sit on.

If you need the toilet they are to the left of the box office and a changing places loo on the right.

There are toilets upstairs too.

There is a café at Cast where you can buy food and drink.

You can get a free glass of water if you would like one.

Cast Theatre has two levels, the ground level is called the stalls and the upper level is called the circle.

If you are sitting in the circle you will walk up the stairs or use the lift.

You may hear this announcement
“Ladies and gentlemen, the Main Space is now open” or “Please take your seats, this evening’s performance is about to begin”
your ticket will say which door to use.

There are lots of people called Ushers who will help you find the right door. There are also signs telling you where to go and if there is smoke or loud bangs.

The Usher will take your ticket.

As you enter the theatre you will make your way to your seat

There may be an announcement at the start of the show. The lights may begin to dim and the room could get darker. When this happens everyone will go quiet.

Remember: if you have a mobile phone- please turn it off.

When the show starts you will see actors come on to the stage.

If they perform a song, people like to clap their hands at the end.

If you feel like it is too loud, you can ask to borrow some ear defenders from the box office.

Some shows can have flashing lights, loud music and bangs.

If you feel unhappy, let an usher know and they can take you to a quieter space such as the latecomer's booths at the back of the theatre to watch the show.

Most shows have a break of 20 minutes which is called an interval.

Most people use the interval to go to the toilet - the queue may be quite long. Some people have a snack or a drink.

Once the interval is over, you will hear an announcement to go back into the theatre to watch the second half of the show.

At the end of the show most people will clap and the actors will bow.

After the show some of the audience may stay for a drink and a chat, some may leave.

Thank you for visiting Cast - we hope to see you again soon!
